

Walking Between Grace and Grief

When we know how to listen, we can hear it. With every gesture and footstep, every uttered sound, someone's grief is beating in the heart of Grace.

We know the life of Grace began with a loss of heart and a gift from death, an awakening grown out of some unseen sorrow.

And we know, too, Grace and grief are walking together. What we don't know is this: Which of them walks beside us today?

Vernon Fowlkes Jr
Mobile, Alabama
vernon@vernonfowlkes.net

Author in the Room®

Translating research into practice
from JAMA and IHI

Will This Patient Develop Persistent Disabling Low Back Pain?

Roger Chou, MD

May 19, 2010
2 to 3 PM ET

Discuss the clinical implications of research results with the author at the next teleconference.

Sign up at

www.ihl.org/authorintheroom

Can't attend the conference?

Submit your questions to replies@jama-archives.org

Listen to past conferences or subscribe to the Podcast at

jama.com/authorintheroom/authorindex.dtl